A CATHOLIC STUDENT'S GUIDE TO LIFE-LONG LEARNING

ANCESTORS OFFER GUIDANCE

Long after a loved one has passed on, we continue to benefit from the gifts of their lives.

While an inheritance or trust fund might seem like the best legacy, the most valuable gifts are intangible—a grandmother's thoughtfulness, a grandfather's gift of time, an uncle's storytelling, an aunt's interest in young ones.

These are treasures you always carry in your heart, memories that will come back to you throughout your lives. Perhaps a memory will comfort you in a difficult time, inspire you to keep trying at something as you saw that person do, or offer a lesson in how to live. Understanding their struggles and accomplishments opens doors for your own growth and success.
