SHOES

What to Wear When

Flip flops in a dozen colors. Skateboard shoes for every occasion. Is your only concern what you wear about fashion than function? Here are some tips.

Dress for the Occasion

Fashion has its place, and by all means, you should have a pair or two of favorites for those make-or-buy good times.

Save the spike heels—which put all your weight and stress on the front of your foot—for glamorous events. Save the flip flops—which don't support your ankles—for casual days. And save the skateboard shoes for the boards.

Give Your Feet a Break

When it comes to hiking, athletic activities, or other activities where you'll want your feet to feel good and support you well for hours, choose your shoes with that activity in mind.

Athletic shoes provide strong support, so your feet—and the rest of you—can deliver maximum performance. The right shoes can also help prevent injuries, especially true if you run track or cross country.

For hiking, safety comes into play, as well as comfort. Choose shoes or boots with a treaded, high-grip outsole. And if you're headed for rocky trails, make sure you're wearing a high-cut hiking boot, to prevent ankle sprains.

Watch for wear, too. If the insole cushioning our outsole is losing its luster, it's time to replace those shoes.

What Feet Are Made Of

Every step you take, complex machines called feet have to function. What's at work?

- 26 bones in each foot
- An intricate network of ligaments and muscles
- A support system for your full body weight

If the Shoe Fits, Wear It

The right fit is oh-so-important.

Your friend may have just the perfect heels for Saturday night, but a half-size too small could leave you thinking only about how much your feet hurt—what a waste of fun! The same goes for shoes that are too loose. A heel that slips out, could make you trip and just don't hold you up.

The best fit is to shoes that fit and feel good.

"I still have my feet on the ground. I just wear better shoes."

— Oprah Winfrey
