

HONESTY

Honest or Dishonest?

Think about these situations and decide what you think is honesty or dishonesty:

Turning in a paper from an Internet source that you created by changing some words, paragraph order and a couple of examples.

Telling your aunt you like the poster she gave you for your birthday even though you no longer like the band.

Telling your parents you're an hour late because your friend had car trouble when the problem was needing to stop for gas, which only took a few minutes.

Letting the umpire call you safe when you know the shortstop tagged you.

Assuring your little sister that the noise she just heard was really the cat when you have no idea what it was.

Keeping the extra dollar you got in change rather than telling the clerk about his mistake.

Is honesty always best?

What do I do if the truth might hurt someone's feelings?
